

3. I have informed Mr. Sourwine, Counsel to the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee, that we know of no valuable information secured from the Reumanian Embassy which was recently seized in Switzerland by a group of dissidents despite newspaper reports to the contrary. 6 Oct 1955

Mr. Sourwine also raised with me, on an informal basis, the question as to whether there would be any use in forwarding to us for a third time the Top Secret record in the [redacted] case with the request that we indicate those portions of it which could not be publicly released. Mr. Sourwine stated that in his opinion, while nothing was stirring on the record at present, it would be better if he had a marked copy, should the question of publication arise again, and thus be able to show the Committee that publication of the record would virtually be meaningless. In Mr. Kirkpatrick's opinion we should not accede to this request because we testified on a Top Secret basis and the record should so remain although we have been under continual pressure to release all or portions of it.
